City children suffer from a great disability. They have little contact with nature. They don't know the joy of living in the open. In cities, there is not space to live. So, one storey is piled upon another. Their lives have become so artificial that they cannot see the stars at night. They get flower pots and put paper flowers in them. They hang pictures of sunrise and sunset on the walls. Whenever one turns, one finds artificial lights during the day as well as in the night. They have lost even the darkness of night which was given to man for peace, rest and quiet thought. The task before education is to change the whole system of values that is current in our cities.
